Johnny was one of those rare people who made even the hardest days lighter just by being himself. In Afghanistan, where the days could feel long and heavy, his kindness and humor somehow made time move faster. He had a way of showing up for people, not loudly or for attention, but genuinely, with a smile, a joke, or perfectly timed laugh that reminded you weren't alone. He brought warmth into a place that often felt unforgiving, and the laughs we shared with him are memories that still echo. Johnny didn't just pass through our lives as a coworker he left behind moments of connection, relief, and humanity that mattered more than he probably ever knew. I'll always be grateful for the light he brought during that chapter of our lives. Some people help you survive tough seasons simply by being kind. Johnny was one of those people, and he will always be remembered that way.

I worked with Johnny on FLW as an instructor. There was never a dull moment when he was around. He was always laughing and cracking jokes. He was a hard worker and I am honored to have met him and call him a friend.
